Seminar series on International Economic Trends - Post Pandemic

The Pandemic has transformed the world, disrupting global supply chain and imposed inflation and economic difficulties on many countries. There is an urgent need to understand the impact on international trends and how they would operate in the post-pandemic era. Our professors would speak on the subject from different angles. It would provide an insight into the new trends of globalization or deglobalization in the coming years. We intend to make this short seminar as part of a longer seminar series of the Research Institute.
